To make ends meet,
I am often working at least two other jobs at the same time I am teaching at ECU.

Rumour has it that
at Emily Carr,
criticism of Bob Rennie, a local real estate developer who is a major donor to
the university, should remain unspoken.

Lack of income
meant I had to make a choice between
maintaining a studio
or living in decent
accommodation.

One instructor
observed that these shelves function
as tiny offices or
studios — work
spaces for artists in cheap IKEA frames.
